Kindergarten teacher experiences dramatic increases in student outcomes!

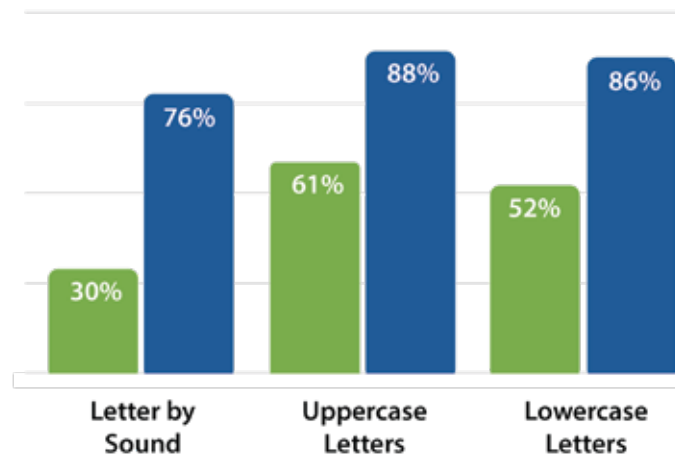

Sheila Rogers
Kindergarten Teacher
Shiloh Elementary School

"It is very easy to use and has activities that can support brief mini-lessons as well as lengthier, more in-depth lessons. It can align with and enhance any curriculum."

Sheila Rogers, a kindergarten teacher in the Gwinnett County Public School District, considers Letters alive as a powerful tool that enhances her current curriculum.

"My students and I love the Letters alive software and materials. The animals from the kit come to life in front of their eyes and increase student engagement tremendously! At the beginning of the school year, we use the augmented reality animal cards daily to boost student knowledge of letters and sounds. I use it often afterwards to help support word knowledge and word building with chunks, blends and endings that vary, as well as sentence building. It is very easy to use and has activities that can support brief mini-lessons as well as lengthier, more in-depth lessons. The cards and software can align with and enhance any curriculum."
